

SID

The snow white damask ensigns are display'd,
And glittering falcons on the sideboard laid.
The shining sideboard, and the burnish'd plate,
Let other ministers, great Anne, require.
Scipio Africanus brought from Carthage to Rome, in silver vessels, to the value of 11955*l.* 15*s.* 9*d.* a quantity exceeded afterwards by the sideboards of many private tables.

SIDEROX, n. f. [side and box.] Seat for the ladies on the side of the theatre.

Why round our coaches crowd the white-glov'd beauts?
Why bows the sidebox from its inmost rows?

SIDDELY, n. f. An insect.
From a rough whitish maggot, in the intestinum rectum of horses, the sidefly proceeds.

To SIDLE, v. n. [from side.] To go with the body the narrowest way.

The chaffering with dissenters is but like opening a few wickets, and leaving them no more than one can get in at a time, and that not without stooping and sidling, and queezing his body.

I pass'd very gently and sidling through the two principal streets.

A fellow nailed up maps in a gentleman's closet, some sidling, and others upside down, the better to adjust them to the panels.

SIDELONG, adj. [side and long.] Lateral; oblique; not in front; not direct.

She darted from her eyes a sidelong glance,
Just as the spoke, and, like her words, it flew;
Seem'd not to beg what she then bid me do.

The deadly wound is in thy soul:
When thou a tempting harlot do'st behold,
And when she casts on thee a sidelong glance,
Then try thy heart, and tell me if it dance?

The reason of the planets motions in curve lines is the attraction of the sun, and an oblique or sidelong impulse.

The kifs snatch'd hasty from the sidelong maid.

SIDELONG, adv.
1. Laterally; obliquely; not in pursuit; not in opposition.

As if on earth
Winds under ground, or waters, forcing way,
Sidelong had pull'd a mountain from his seat,
Half sunk with all his pines.

As a lion, bounding in his way,
With force augmented bears against his prey,
Sidelong to seize.

2. On the side.
If it prove too wet, lay your pots sidelong; but shade those which blow from the afternoon sun.

SIDELONG, adj. [from side, Latin.] Starry; astral.
These changes in the heav'ns, though slow, produc'd
Like change on sea, and land; sidelong blast,
Vapour and mist, and exhalation hot,
Corrupt and pestilent!

The muck gives
Sure hopes of racy wine, and in its youth,
Its tender nonage, loads the spreading boughs
With large and juicy offsprings, that defies
The vernal nippings and cold sidelong blasts.

SIDERATED, adj. [from sideratus, Latin.] Blasted; planet struck.

Parts cauterized, gangrenated, siderated, and mortified, become black; the radical moisture, or vital sulphur, suffering an extinction.

SIDERATION, n. f. [sideration, French; sideratio, Latin.]
A sudden mortification, or, as the common people call it, a blast; or a sudden deprivation of sense, as in an apoplexy.

The contagious vapour of the very eggs produce a mortification or sideration in the parts of plants on which they are laid.

SIDESADDLE, n. f. [side and saddle.] A woman's seat on horseback.

SIDESMAN, n. f. [side and man.] An assistant to the church-warden.

A gift of such goods, made by them with the consent of the side-men or vestry, is void.

SIDEWAYS, adv. [from side and way, or wise.] Laterally;
SIDEWISE, adv. on one side.

The fair blossom hangs the head
Sideways, as on a dying bed;
And those pearls of dew the wears,
Prove to be prefiguring tears.

If in the third experiment the image of the sun should be drawn out into an oblong form, either by a dilatation of every ray, or by any other casual inequality of the refractions, the same oblong image would, by a second refraction made sideways, be drawn out as much in breadth by the like dilatation of the rays, or other casual inequality of the refraction sideways.

SIDWAYS, adv. on one side.

The fair blossom hangs the head
Sideways, as on a dying bed;
And those pearls of dew the wears,
Prove to be prefiguring tears.

SIG

SIGEE, n. f. [sigee, French.]
1. The act of befalling a fortified place; a league.
Our cattle's strength

Will laugh a sigee to scorn: here let them lie,
'Till famine eat them up.

It seemed, by the manner of their proceeding, that the Turks purposed rather by long sigee than by assault to take the town.

The more I see pleasures about me, so much more I feel Torment within me, as from the hateful sigee
Of contraries.

2. Any continued endeavour to gain possession.
Beat away the busy meddling fiend,
That lays strong sigee unto this wretch's soul,
And from his bosom purge this black despair.

3. [Sigee, French.] Scat; throne. Obsolete.
Love flood the sigee, and would not yield his breast.

4. Place; class; rank. Obsolete.
From lofty sigee began these words aloud to sound.

5. [Sigee, French.] Stool.
It entereth not the veins, but taketh leave of the permanent parts, as the mouths of the infernaicks, and accompanieth the inconvertible portion unto the sigee.

6. [Sigee, French.] Scat; throne. Obsolete.
Love flood the sigee, and would not yield his breast.

SIG

Happier he,
Who seeks not pleasure through necessity,
Than such as once on slippery thrones were plac'd,
And chafing, sig to think themselves are chas'd.

The nymph too longs to be alone;
Leaves all the fivains, and sig for one.

Thus sig he away the melancholy night.
To sig, v. a. To lament; to mourn. Not in use.

Ages to come, and men unborn,
Shall bless her name, and sig her fate.

SIGH, n. f. [from the verb.] A violent and audible emission of the breath which has been long retained, as in sadness.

Full often has my heart swoln with keeping my sig imprisoned; full often have the tears I drove back from mine eyes, turned back to drown my heart.

Love is a smoke rais'd with the fume of sig;
Being purg'd, a fire sparkling in lovers eyes.

What a sig is there! The heart is forcibly charg'd.
Laughing, if loud, ends in a deep sig; and all pleasures have a sig in the tail, though they carry beauty on the face.

In Venus' temple, on the fides were seen
Issuing sig, that smok'd along the wall.

SIGHT, n. f. [gēre, Saxon; sicht, Dutch.]
1. Perception by the eye; the sense of seeing.

If bees go forth right to a place, they must needs have sight.

O loss of sight, of thee I most complain!
Blind among enemies, O worse than chains,
Dungeon or beggary, decrepit age!

Things invisible to mortal sight.
'Tis still the same, although their airy shape
All but a quick postick sight escape.

My eyes are somewhat dimly grown;
For nature, always in the right,
To your decays adapts my sight.

2. Open view; a situation in which nothing obstructs the eye.
Undaunted Hotspur
Brings on his army, eager unto sight,
And plac'd the same before the king in sight.

Æneas cast his wond'ring eyes around,
And all the Tyrrhene army had in sight,
Stretch'd on the spacious plain from left to right.

I met Brutus in a mortal sight;
He's dipt for certain, and plays least in sight.

3. Act of seeing or beholding.
Nine things to sight required are;
The power to see, the light, the visible thing,
Being not too small, too thin, too high, too far,
Clear space and time, the form distinct to bring.

Mine eye purld him still, but under shade
Lost sight of him.

What form of death could him affright,
Who unconcern'd, with steadfast sight,
Could view the surges mounting steep,
And monsters rolling in the deep!

Having little knowledge of the circumstances of those St.
Paul writ to, it is not strange that many things lie concealed to us, which they who were concerned in the letter understood at first sight.

4. Notice; knowledge.
It was writ as a private letter to a person of piety, upon an assurance that it should never come to any one's sight but her own.

5. Eye; instrument of seeing.
From the depth of hell they lift their sight,
And at a distance see superior light.

6. Aperture previous to the eye, or other point fixed to guide the eye; as, the sights of a quadrant.

7. Spectacle; show; thing wonderful to be seen.
Their eyes of fire sparkling through sights of steel.

Thus are my eyes still captive to one sight;
Thus all my thoughts are slaves to one thought still.

Of fowls so lovely, that they fure did deem
Then heavenly born.

But is a weary of thy common sight,
Save mine, which hath desir'd to see thee more.

Moses said, I will turn aside and see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt.

I took a selucca at Naples to carry me to Rome, that I might not run over the same sights a second time.

Not proud Olympus yields a nobler sight,
Though gods assembled grace his towering heights,
Than what more humble mountains offer here,
Where, in their blessings, all those gods appear.

Before you pass th' imaginary sights
Of lords and earls, and dukes and garter'd knights,
While the spread fan o'erhades your closing eyes,
Then give one sight, and all the vision flies.

7. Spectacle; show; thing wonderful to be seen.
Their eyes of fire sparkling through sights of steel.

Thus are my eyes still captive to one sight;
Thus all my thoughts are slaves to one thought still.

Of fowls so lovely, that they fure did deem
Then heavenly born.

But is a weary of thy common sight,
Save mine, which hath desir'd to see thee more.

SIG

SIGHTED, adj. [from sight.] Seeing in a particular manner.
It is used only in composition, as quicksighted, sharpsighted.

As they might, to avoid the weather, pull the joints of the coach up close, so they might put each end down, and remain as discovered and open sighted as on horseback.

The king was very quick sighted in discerning difficulties, and raising objections, and very slow in mastering them.

SIGHTFULNESS, n. f. [from sight and full.] Perpicuity; clearness of sight. Not in use.

But still, although we fail of perfect rightfulness,
Seek we to tame these childish superfluities;
Let us not wink, though void of purest sightfulness.

SIGHTLESS, adj. [from sight.]
1. Wanting sight; blind.

The latent traicts, the giddy heights explore,
Of all who blindly creep, or sightless soar.

2. Not sightly; offensive to the eye; unpleasing to look at.
Full of unpleasing blots and sightless stains,
Patch'd with foul moles, and eye-offending marks.

SIGHTLY, adj. [from sight.] Pleading to the eye; striking to the view.

It lies as sightly on the back of him,
As great Alcides shews upon an ass.

Their having two eyes and two ears so placed, is more sightly and useful.

A great many brave sightly horses were brought out, and only one plain nag that made sport.

We have thirty members, the most sightly of all her majesty's subjects: we elected a president by his height.
